

Red Robin Restaurant Schaumburg and Algonquin, Illinois

Client: Mach-Robin LLC
Architect: Rengel & Company Architects
Role: General Contractor

ICI was contracted to serve as general contractor for the construction of two west coast-style burger concept restaurants.

Located in Schaumburg, interior build-out work was managed for this restaurant in the Woodfield Mall. A full bar and large exhibition kitchen dominates the 5,869 SF site. The existing footprint was expanded to accommodate Red Robin needs. To remain on schedule, the ICI team overcame unexpected equipment specification delays and storm sewer issues.

In Algonquin, this 7,055 SF freestanding restaurant remained extremely close to schedule despite an unseasonably rainy autumn that caused problematic site conditions. Subcontractors worked particularly well as a team in spite of inches of mud caked onto shoes and equipment.

To maintain schedule, ICI's management, along with electrical and plumbing subcontractors, accomplished a four-day kitchen build out and completed floor penetrations for installations with accuracy and success.
