

Taylor Brewing Company
717 East Butterfield Road, Lombard, Illinois

Client: Taylor Brewing Company
Architect: Randy Pruy Architects
Role: Design/Build

Serving in a design/build capacity for this 8,133 SF restaurant/micro-brewery, ICI was charged with meeting a very tight deadline to satisfy the owner's occupancy needs.

Working closely with the architect to ensure strong communication among team members, ICI was able to deliver the design within two months. Construction was completed ahead of the 6-month time frame.

This steel frame, masonry veneer, bar and micro-brewery has a seating capacity of 220. In addition to domestic and imported beers, Taylor Brewing Company offers a variety of "Taylor family" beers brewed on their premises. Rusty Dog Amber is a mild, golden amber beer named after a golden and white family dog - Rusty.

According to Gary M. Taylor, president, "Your company has provided exceptional services that not only insured the interest of the restaurant, but also insured the finished product from design to completion. It was completed in budget and on time . . . I would not hesitate to recommend International Contractors to anyone for their future design and construction projects."
